A BEING THAT QUESTIONS BEING (HEIDEGGER)

MAN (DASEIN)
a being that questions Being;
Being is man’s concern.
Man is ‘thrown’ from Being itself into the truth of Being.

BEING
Being is a ground that creates a clearing or opening.

Thinking accomplishes the relation of Being to the essence of man.”
--“Letter on Humanism” [1947]

“The Event of Appropriation
“What determines both, time and Being, in their own, that is, in their belonging together, we shall call: Ereignis, the event of Appropriation. ...‘event’ is not simply an occurrence, but that which makes any occurrence possible. ...the It that gives in ‘It gives Being,’ ‘It gives time,’ proves to be Appropriation” (“Time and Being,” 19).
